A.G. Leventis PhD Scholarship in Late Antique Cyprus
Open University of Cyprus

The Studies in Hellenic Culture Program of the Open University of Cyprus invites applications for a doctoral research scholarship in the study of Late Antique Cyprus made available through the Foundation Anastasios G. Leventis in the Memory of Constantine Leventis.

The grant payable to a single student for the 24-month duration of the award (optionally renewable) will be €10,000 per annum, commencing in the academic year 2012-13. The University will also cover the full amount of fees for the same period. The successful PhD candidate will also be able to benefit from a stipend of € 3,000 that the A.G. Leventis Foundation offers to the Open University Library for the purchase of books related to the subject of the scholarship.

The Scholarship is offered for the support of research into any aspect of Cyprus in late antiquity, including history, art and archaeology, language, theology and literature. The dissertation can be written in either Greek or English. The successful candidate is expected to be actively involved in the research activities of the Program.

Applications, including a curriculum vitae, a 1,000-word outline of proposed research and two letters of recommendation, should be sent to:

Re: Leventis Scholarship
Open University of Cyprus
Studies in Hellenic Culture
PO Box 12794, 2252, Latsia, Cyprus

The closing deadline for applications is Monday 30 April 2012.
More information about the Program can be found at:

http://www.ouc.ac.cy/web/guest/s1/programme/elp/description

For further details about the scholarship please contact:

Prof. S. Efthymiadis, Open University of Cyprus: efthymiadis@ouc.ac.cy
Dr. Georgios Deligiannakis, Open University of Cyprus: g.deligiannakis@ouc.ac.cy